

Hocking College Lab Internet Acceptable Use Policy applies to everyone who uses the computers or network in Lab John Light 357. The lab is intended for school assignments, research, and approved projects only. To utilize the lab for any other than standard use, you need clear, written authorization.

Students should not run network scans, capture traffic, guess passwords, or any other security testing without written permission from IT. Downloading unapproved software, accessing files or accounts without permission, sharing or bypassing logins, or trying to disperse malicious code is prohibited.

By accessing the lab, you agree to limited monitoring, i.e., log in times, network traffic, or file access. Logs are kept for as short period (7 Days) for security purposes and only by authorized staff.

Any infractions should be reported to the IT Office. Breaking this policy could lead to loss of lab privileges, referral to Student Conduct, or legal action.
